"You can change an entire life often with a single operation," he says. "The patients are so grateful and the psychological and spiritual reward is enormous. It is a privilege that I am gifted with my skills and I am entrusted with such great patients."

Dr. Obi's surgical involvement has extended beyond the United States as he has operated on the underprivileged in Europe, Ethiopia, the Philippines and the Caribbean.

He has worked closely with Palomar Medical Technology and Asian pioneers of stem cell research. As a result of this recent expertise, Dr. Obi has lectured and trained hundreds of specialists in these areas internationally.

A life-long personal love of art and beauty, expressed through the international art firm of Obiarts, won Dr. Obi a unique nomination as a Fellow to the Royal Society of Art in London (FRSA).

Like many in his field, Dr. Obi has an interest in combining art and medicine. "After all," as he has often stated, "medicine's contribution to art is the art of plastic surgery."
